In my opinion, the best way to be happy and full filled at your job is to follow your dreams.

If I could get a chance to address one question to your CEO, my question would be as following: What is the main strength (skill, knowledge) that in your opinion will set one candidate apart from the rest and to whom you will offer a job?

Unfortunately, I do not have previous work experience so I cannot fully answer this question. However, while learning programming, I encountered various challenges and looked for different ways to overcome them. One way was to search for a solution through web browsers, during which I learned a lot of new things.

Thank you very much in advance for reviewing my letter and consideration.

I look forward to receive your feedback.

Best regards,
